MARK I PRIME.

Appendix.

The Settlement at Rowley Essex Co. Mass.

The Rev^d Ezekiel Rogers was given the living of Rowley,* co. York, England by Sir Francis Barrington, co. Essex Kt.

December 1638 Mr. Rogers arrived in America with about 20 † families and they all spent the winter at Salem; April or May 1639 this company which had increased to 60 families settled on lands in Essex co. Mass. to which a charter was granted September 7th 1639 under the name of Rowley.

Soon after the settlement other families moved into the town, so that before the survey of Rowley, bearing date January 10th 1644, was completed, 16 other families had been added to the original 60 and land was also assigned to them at the time it was distributed.

We find the name of Mark I Prime in the list of the 76 families, but not in that of the 60 families.

These people labored originally in common and this state of things lasted 5 years, no man owning any land in severalty until the land on both sides of the brook had been cleared and they had laid out some streets and roads, several of which received names.

Will of Mark Prime and the proving of the same. (PROBATE OFFICE ESSEX CO. MASS. 4: 76.)

* The term "natural" must not be taken to mean "illegitimate"; it was quite common in those days to use this word in describing members of the family; as an example see Historical Collections of the Essex Institute, Vol. XXIII. in which Roger Darby is described in grants of Letters of Administration in 1671, in two distinct cases, as "natural" brother.

Account of Grace Parish, New York. (PUBLISHED: NEW YORK TRIBUNE, MAY 6TH, 1883.)

The first steps toward the formation of the society which has for seventy-five years been known as Grace Church parish were taken in 1805. On May 29 of that year the trustees of the German Lutheran Church in the city of New York conveyed to Matthew Clarkson, Herman Le Roy, Peter Schermerhorn, Henry Rogers, and Julian Ludlow, as trustees, the lot at the south corner of Broadway and Rector St., with the church building upon it. Nothing further was done until three years later, when those who were interested in forming the new church met and elected a building committee consisting of Rufus King, Anthony L. Bleecker, and Moses L. Rogers. Through the efforts of this committee a new building was erected on the lot purchased in 1805, and was consecrated as Grace Church on December 21, 1808. The Rev. Samuel Bowen, of Charleston, S. C., was chosen as the first rector of the church in the following April. The church was without an organ, and Mr. Bowen offered it the use of an instrument which had been in his parlor. The vestry spent $20 in having the organ repaired, and it was placed in the church. This building formed a parallelogram 101 feet long within the walls, and 57 feet wide. The exterior was mainly of brick, and was built in the plainest manner. The projections were of marble and wood, and the Doric cornice was surmounted by a balustrade divided into panels. The building was surmounted by a wooden cupola, cylindrical in form, resting upon an octagonal pedestal. The roof of the cupola was dome shape, supported by Ionic columns, and had springing from it a small fanciful spire terminating in a vane which represented a dart. The interior of the church had a lofty concave ceiling supported by four massive Ionic columns with corresponding pilasters. The church was built with funds provided by the corporation of Trinity Church. When the building was completed the vestry sold the pews and offered the proceeds to Trinity Church. Trinity refused to take the money, and it was invested in real estate as a fund for the maintenance of Grace Church.

In 1816 Dr. Bowen resigned his rectorship and was succeeded by the Rev. James Montgomery, of Trenton, N. J. He was followed in 1821 by the Rev. Jonathan Wainwright an assistant minister of Trinity Church. Dr. Wainwright's rectorship continued till 1833, and under his guidance the church made great and substantial progress. The parish clerk was no longer allowed to make the responses in the church liturgy, and the rector encouraged the congregation to take an active and efficient interest in that part of the service. Dr. Wainwright was an accomplished musician, and he compiled and arranged a collection of sacred music for his church, which the vestry had published. This collection has found its way to all parts of the country. In May, 1834, the Rev. Thomas House Taylor, of South Carolina, succeeded Dr. Wainwright, who had accepted a call to be rector of Trinity Church, Boston. Dr. Taylor continued as rector until his death in 1867. Under his ministry the church was removed to its present site, where the new church was built at a cost of $100,000 and was consecrated on March 7, 1846. Through Dr. Taylor's efforts, also, the Free Mission Chapel, which is now Grace Chapel, was built in East Fourteenth St. in 1853. The first building was burned in 1872, and the present handsome structure was built in its place.

Note on St. Paul's Church, East Chester, Westchester Co. N. Y.
(PUBLISHED: NEW YORK TIMES, OCTOBER 25TH 1885.)

ANNIVERSARY OF THE CONSECRATION OF ST. PAUL'S, EAST CHESTER.

The eightieth anniversary of the consecration of St. Paul's Church, East Chester, Westchester County, was commemorated yesterday with interesting exercises conducted by Bishop Henry C. Potter, of the New York Diocese of the Episcopal Church. Other clergy assisting in the proceedings were the Rector of the church, the Rev. Dr. William S. Coffey; the Rev. Mr. Chase, Rector of the parish of St. James the Less, Scarsdale; the Rev. Mr. Canedy, of Trinity Church, New Rochelle; the Rev. Stephen F. Holmes, of Trinity Church, Mount Vernon; the Rev. Mr. Johnson, of St. Peter's, Westchester; the Rev. Dr. Cooper, of the Church of the Redeemer, Astoria, and the Rev. Dr. Van Rensselaer. The exercises began during the forenoon with the regular Episcopal service, the Rev. Mr. Chase officiating, and the Rev. Mr. Canedy reading the lessons.

Then the Rev. Mr. Holmes read the creed and prayers, and Bishop Potter conducted the ante-communion service and administered the rite of confirmation to nine candidates. The epistle was read by the Rev. Dr. Van Rensselaer, and brief addresses were delivered by Bishop Potter and the Rector, and by the Rev. Messrs. Johnson and Cooper. Dr. Coffey gave a brief sketch of the history of the church edifice, which was built in 1764, or thereabout, but was not consecrated until about 40 years later, on Oct. 24, 1805. During a portion of the interim it was used by the American and British forces engaged in the Revolutionary struggle as a hospital, and in 1787 by Chief Justice Morris as a Supreme Court room. Bishop Moore consecrated the church, and the Rev. H. Wilton was its first Rector.

Following the religious exercises of the forenoon there was a communion service, and a collation was afterward partaken of by those attending the celebration in the vestry of the church. The old Bible and prayer book belonging to the church when it was opened and which were buried during the Revolution for safe keeping were used in yesterday's proceedings. The old church bell was also rung to call the congregation together, and the altar table used in the consecration service 80 years ago was placed in the north aisle of the church for inspection by those present.

The Prime vault is outside of the church, near the south-east wall.

Deeded October 25th 1843,* to Cornelia, widow of Nathaniel I Prime; that same year the remains of Nathaniel I Prime, and of his daughter Harriet, were removed from St. Mark's, in the Bowery, N. Y., and placed in this vault. Nathaniel I Prime's widow was also interred in it.

Obituary Notice of Daniel N. Prime of Rowley, a Descendant of Mark II Prime. (PUBLISHED: ESSEX CO. MERCURY, DECEMBER 21st 1881.)

The death of Capt. Daniel N. Prime, which occurred during the last week, has been noticed in the daily papers, but is deserving of more than a passing mention on account of his advanced age and the prominent position which he occupied in the town during a long and useful life, managing at one time the business of a country store, tannery, shoe manufactory, and a small farm. When the Eastern Railroad was opened through the town, he was among the few who became interested in the enterprise, purchasing at that time the land through which the road to the station was opened, and also a tract of swamp land lying along the borders of the marsh, containing some thirty or forty acres, all of which he reclaimed and converted into valuable mowing. He was the first station-master upon the railroad in this town, and established a line of freight wagons between Rowley and Georgetown, which was continued until the opening of the railroad through the latter town. In his earlier days he was frequently chosen to town offices, and twice filled the position of Representative to the General Court.

The deceased has from time to time exhibited considerable literary talent, several of his productions in poetry as well as prose having been printed and enjoyed by those who knew him best. He was the author of an ode sung at the centennial celebration of the settlement of the town in 1839, and in those earlier days wrote several poems upon local subjects which interested and amused his townsmen. During his later years his mind has been more particularly exercised upon religious topics and made familiar with the Bible and theological works. He was an earnest advocate of the doctrine of universal salvation, and those who differed from him in conviction gave him credit for honesty, sincerity, and a kindly disposition toward all. For several years he has been deprived of sight, and by this misfortune, of his favorite pastime of reading and writing.

The physicians in attendance could discover no appearance of disease of any kind; death seemed the result of natural decay, reaching the end "like a shock of corn fully ripe." The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Mr. Closson of Essex, on Friday afternoon, in the chapel of the Universalist parish. The house was crowded with neighbors and friends. Many were noticed from the adjoining towns, drawn by the influence of old memories and associations. The officiating clergyman, who formerly supplied the desk in which he stood, and enjoyed the acquaintance of the deceased, spoke at length of his pure and exemplary life; and when he declared his belief that no person could point the finger at the casket and say that its inmate had ever done his neighbor wrong the assertion met with a response in every bosom, and brought moisture to many eyes.

The partnership title of "D. N. Prime & Sons" is still retained by the sons, both in trade and manufacture, and an older or more honorable name cannot be found in commercial circles.
